Longer Term Plan (2019 – 2024)
for improving health and care

Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes Longer Term Plan

Introduction

What's this about?

The organisations responsible for health and care in Bedford Borough, Central Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes are working together to develop a plan for the next five years, responding to the NHS Long Term Plan¹ that was published in January 2019. At the heart of the plan is making sure that you get the care you need, when you need it.

Our ambition - why we've written this plan and what it means for you and your family

The purpose of our plan is to improve our services so that it's easier for you to manage your own care as much as possible. When you do need us, we want to make sure that you can get an appointment quickly, with the best person to help you in a place that is near to where you live. This will also help our hospitals work better, so that if you or your family needs specialist treatment, we can get you seen and treated without delay.

Making the best use of our skills and resources

Since 2016 hospitals, clinical commissioning groups, GPs, community and mental health trusts, ambulance trusts and local councils in Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes have been working more closely together. This means we can contribute better to the overall health and care needs of the people we serve and get the most out of the skills and resources we have available.

We share a common purpose – we want people to live longer in good health. When people need care, we want them to get the very best available. To do this we need to look after our staff, recruiting and retaining the highest quality people. And we have a duty to spend public money wisely on services that will make the biggest difference to local people.

Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes Longer Term Plan

Our priorities for the future are very much in line with those set out in the NHS Long Term Plan. We've talked to colleagues to understand and learn from them about what is working well. But most importantly, we've talked to you, local people, to find out what matters most.

One of the biggest changes we're making is to create teams of health and care professionals who will work with GP practices and with community and mental health services, social care workers and volunteers to provide more tailored services in your area.

We want to work with communities to help people stay healthy and well

Factors such as good jobs and housing affect our physical and mental health, so while we need to look at how we can continue to improve local health services, we can't do this alone. This is why the NHS, your local councils and other organisations are working more closely together than ever, to really make a difference.

We know that local people want local services, and so local health and care providers are planning to work together to break down barriers and make it simpler for you when you are in need of help.

These are ambitious plans and we're excited about the positive improvements we'll be making for you and your family. Over the next five years we will continue to work with you to shape our future together.

What you have told us is important to you and your family

During the course of this year we have listened to local people, supported by local Healthwatch², to get a better idea of what's important to you and what you think we could do better.

We know that people want to keep local services and to access healthcare when they need it. Here are some common themes we've heard:

- 1. You want to access local services, like GP services and hospital referrals, quicker. People would like to get appointments sooner, with 80% of people we surveyed saying improved access to GP services was the most important thing.
- 2. Improving mental health services for both children and young people and adults should be a priority. People of all ages should be able to get the help and support they need quickly and easily.
- 3. You would like more support and information to help you lead a healthier life. Our communities want to be healthier, but need support to tackle things like obesity and diabetes.
- 4. New technology provides an opportunity to improve people's care. You would like us to make the most of this opportunity. By investing in technology we can help people access services online and reduce the pressure on our services.

² <https://www.healthwatch.co.uk/report/2019-09-04/what-people-have-told-us-about-health-and-social-care-april-june-2019>

- 5. Our staff are excellent, but stretched. Therefore, we must recruit more people to work in health and care. To provide high quality, compassionate and person-centred care we need to recruit new people to work in the health and care sector, as well as do more to retain our existing workforce.
- 6. You don't want to have to repeatedly tell your story to different health and care staff. You want your care to be better coordinated across the different staff group, organisations and services and for us to use technology to help us do this.
- 7. When people are diagnosed with cancer, they want to feel confident they can access better information and support. People recognise that treatment and care after diagnosis works well but they would like to see improved information to help them make informed choices throughout their diagnosis and treatment.

We have been out and about asking local people what their future NHS looks like and what would help them to stay as healthy and well as possible. Here are some of the things you told us:

- "I want access to healthcare professionals at times convenient to me"
- "We want mental health services to be accessible to ALL"
- "More information and support to improve our diet and cooking skills"
- "More screening for older people"
- "Better use of social prescriptions"
- "Ability to access services online via apps and Skype"
- "Good education to enable me to understand how to look after myself"
- "More integration between health services and social worker teams, hospitals and charities"
- "More care in the community provided by people who care"

The big issues we currently face as a local health and care system

The NHS has for some time been challenged by a number of big issues. These are slightly different depending on where you are in the country. Across our region we are working hard with partners to face these big issues head on.

Almost one million people live in Bedford Borough, Central Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes, one of the fastest growing areas in the country. The characteristics of these different places affect what local people need from their health and social care services.

With a 20 year gap in life expectancy and healthy life expectancy, more people will mean more care will need to be provided. Without action now, keeping people healthy and happy in the future will be much, much harder.

Some specific challenges we have are:

We have a growing population. Our population could increase by nearly 90% by 2050. This would include an 80% increase in the number of children and young people, a 70% increase in the working age population and nearly 150% increase in the population aged over 65. We need to make sure we have the right health and care services in place to support this.

More people are living with long term health conditions, such as diabetes and arthritis that cannot be cured but can be effectively managed. The quality of healthcare that people receive and their general health and wellbeing varies.

We have considerable health inequalities.

A baby girl born in Central Bedfordshire today can expect to live for 84.4 years, over 6 years longer than a baby boy born in Luton (78.3 years).

The number of people seeking treatment at our A&E departments continues to rise and this places pressure on ambulance and hospital providers. Our plans are aimed at supporting people to seek appropriate treatment and only attending A&E departments when really necessary.

We could be doing better on circulatory and respiratory diseases. Coronary heart disease admission rates are higher than nationally in our area. Hospital admissions for asthma in under 19s are high in Milton Keynes. Admissions for cardio-pulmonary disease are high everywhere except Luton.

We are also facing workforce shortages and significant financial pressures. We can't continue to provide both the high quality and wide range of services we do today without making changes; to work smarter and more efficiently to get better value for every pound of taxpayers' money.

We need to make sure we can meet these challenges head on and that is why we have put together this plan, which shows what we will change over the next five years and what difference it will make to you and your family.

Living longer in good health

Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes Longer Term Plan

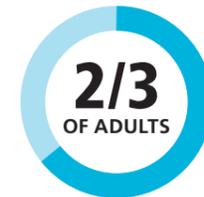

People are living on average as much as 20 years in poor health (the gap between healthy life expectancy and life expectancy).

Only 45% of people using social care in BLMK feel they have as much social contact as they would like.

In the most deprived areas of Luton and Bedford Borough, two thirds of children are living in poverty.

Two thirds of adults in BLMK are overweight or obese.

Our goals – what we want to achieve

We recognise that getting the fundamentals right will help us successfully deliver the rest of our five year plan. There's lots of things we can do, but we think these are four of the most important:

1. Making sure that every person in Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes lives as healthy a life as possible, for as long as possible: People living in some parts of our area currently suffer significantly poorer health than others and on average, tend to die younger. We have to do something about this.

2. Making sure we're there for you when you need us most: Sometimes people can't get the right appointments quickly, or they have to wait too long to see a specialist. And then they have to tell their story over and over again. We have to make our services work better together.

3. Making sure that Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes is the best health and care system to work in: In order to look after you, we need to look after our people. If we can help them to work better together and feel more supported, they'll be better able to give you consistently high standards of compassionate care.

4. Making the most of our funding: The NHS Long Term Plan provides future investment into local services which, for our area, means we have an extra £234 million over the period of the plan, including an allowance for inflation. By achieving our six changes (see next section), we will be making the best use of public money and ensuring as much money as possible goes into patient care.

Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes Longer Term Plan

Our top six changes for helping you live longer in good health

As you'd expect, our plan is extensive. There are lots of things we need to do differently to make a positive change to the health and care services you and your family can access. The biggest of these are set out here. They are our top six changes and they're aligned to the promises set out in the NHS Long Term Plan.

1 Creating opportunities for you to see a range of staff in your community, offering you more coordinated and personal care

2 Improving the way our hospitals work so you get faster treatment in an emergency and don't wait too long for an operation or other hospital care

3 Giving you better information and support to help you stay well and manage illness sooner

4 Giving you choice and control over the way your care is planned and delivered

5 Making sure the right people are there to support you

6 Getting the most out of technology

Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes Longer Term Plan

1 Creating opportunities for you to see a range of staff in your community, offering you more coordinated and personal care

Our GPs, nurses, social workers, mental health workers and other staff need to work together, in teams, in the community to better meet your needs. This means you will be able to see the right person, when and where you need to and your care will be better organised to meet your individual needs.

Many of you have told us that you'd prefer to be cared for at home as much as possible, near to your family and friends, rather than having to be in hospital or residential care. In order to make this happen we need to spend more money on your local GP and community health services. In the last year or so, many of our GP practices have provided evening and weekend appointments so that working families can see a GP at a time to suit them. Over the next four years we'll be continuing this investment and introducing some new approaches.

Since July, we've created 22 teams of different health and care staff across BLMK who are now working more effectively together to meet your health and care needs. These teams are called Primary Care Networks (or PCNs). They are led by local GPs and include Nurses, Physiotherapists, Mental Health Workers, Pharmacists, Social Workers and others. There are lots of advantages to working in this way, one of which is that you don't have to repeat your story time and time again and our teams of staff are quicker at gathering the information they need from you and others to organise your care. As these teams have only been in place for a short period of time, you might not be aware of these changes in your own GP practice. Over the coming years we plan to further develop these PCNs and the staff who work in them.

Here are some examples of the changes you can expect to see in your local PCN:

From 2020 you'll be able to see a clinical pharmacist, who will use their specialist knowledge of medicines to assess and treat you as needed. There will be staff who can provide you or your family with mental health and wellbeing support when needed. There will also be social prescribers, whose job it is to connect people, especially the more frail and vulnerable, with non medical support, day centres, charities or community groups to improve wellbeing and help tackle loneliness or social isolation.

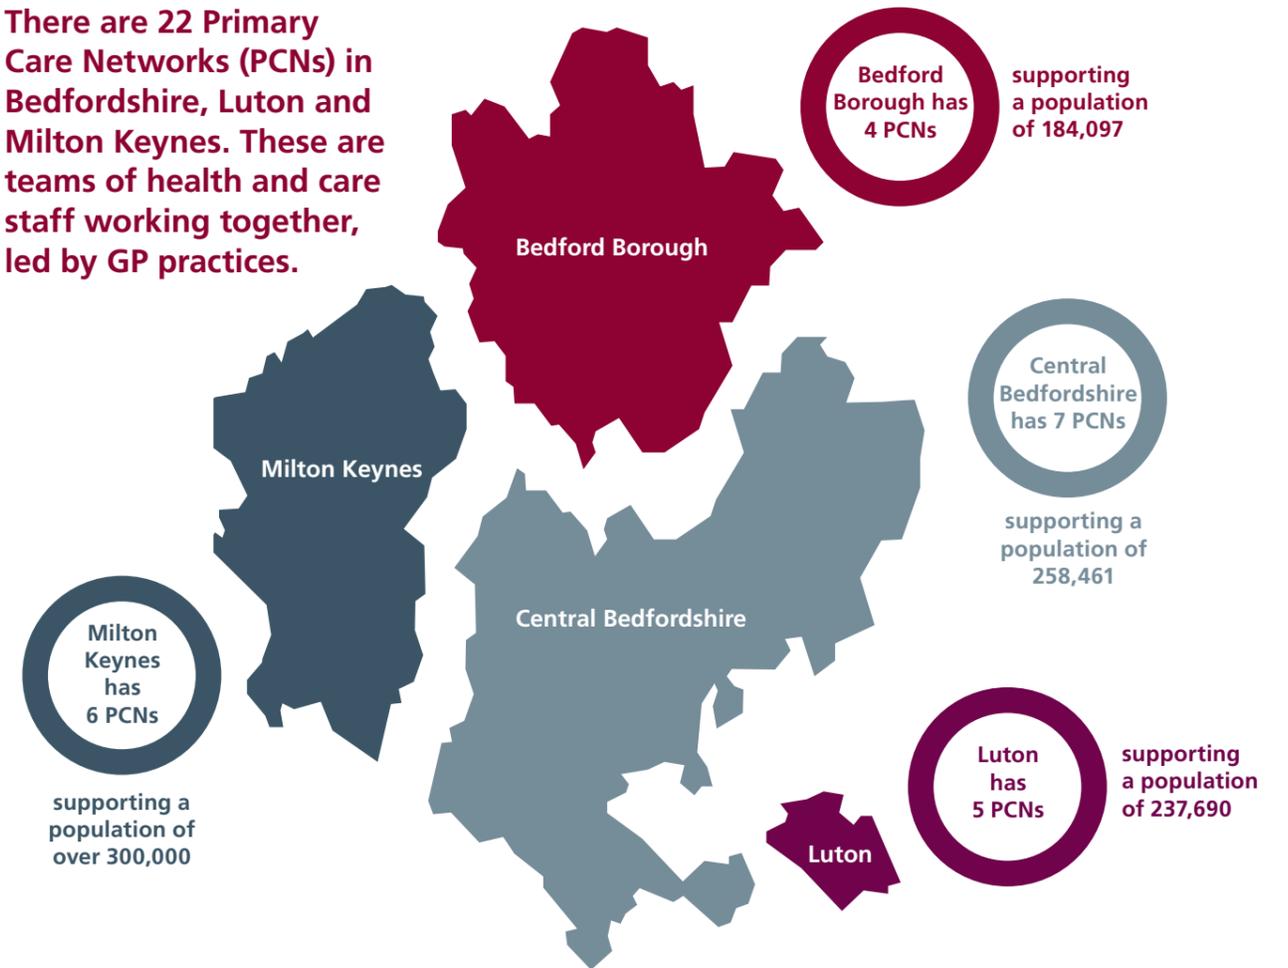

Further support in PCNs will continue and from 2021 this will include physiotherapists who have completed extra orthopaedic training to enable them to support you and your family with injuries or illnesses involving muscles, bones or joints. In some instances, you'll be able to self-refer to see these staff and in others, you might be directed by key staff. You'll see new staff, such as Physician Associates, who are trained to do some of the work of your GP and some of the work of the Practice Nurse, like examining you, interpreting your test results and diagnosing what's wrong.

By March 2022 we'll introduce the Advanced Paramedic Practitioner, who will be there to support 'same day clinics' for minor illness and injury, assessing and treating you as required, as well as carrying out health check reviews and home visits on behalf of your GP.

Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes Longer Term Plan

There are 22 Primary Care Networks (PCNs) in Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes. These are teams of health and care staff working together, led by GP practices.

You will also see the introduction of some new ways of working to get you the support and help you need quicker.

About half of our GP practices already offer online consultations and this will become more widely available during 2020. The opportunity to talk to a GP via a telephone appointment will also continue and expand. We are testing video consultations in some of our practices, so you can talk to a GP 'live' from home, without having to come to the surgery. This will become more widely available during 2020. And for some patients with particular Long Term Conditions we'll be testing group sessions in the practice to help manage diabetes, high blood pressure and similar conditions, as well as ensuring these patients always see a GP and are offered longer appointments.

We are planning to introduce an urgent service for people who need crisis support at home, so we can prevent them from being admitted to hospital, unless it's necessary. This will mean that by 2022 if you or your family are clinically judged to need urgent care from our community services, we'll see you at home within two hours. If you then need further services to help you return to daily life, we'll provide this within two days.

And for people who live in Care homes, there'll be extra support to help them manage what is often a wider range of health needs, meaning faster and more effective help from a range of staff according to need. This support will be available to all BLMK care homes by 2021.

Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes Longer Term Plan

2 Improving the way our hospitals work so you get faster treatment in an emergency and don't wait too long for an operation or other hospital care

At the moment when people can't see their GP when they want to, they sometimes go to A&E. This means that our hospitals slow down and planned operations can sometimes get cancelled while we deal with more emergencies. We need to reduce the pressure our hospitals are under and that's why we're investing in more opportunities for you to see the right health staff in the community. This will help our hospitals work faster and better and ensure you get the treatment you need more quickly and conveniently. Here are some of the things we have started and will be rolling out:

Making sure that everyone across BLMK gets the same access to the NHS 111 service. We want to make sure that, where appropriate, you can access our Clinical Advisory Service or CAS for short. This is a telephone service run by GPs, Clinical Advisors, Nurses, Paramedics, and Pharmacists which allows you to talk directly to a healthcare professional from the comfort of your own home. If necessary, you will be booked directly into an appointment with your own GP surgery.

We're currently working to extend this service more widely in care homes, so that staff there can speak with a clinician at any time, day or night. We want to ensure that this service is available to all care homes across BLMK. We believe this will help support care home residents better, so they're don't have to go to hospital unless necessary.

We will improve the way you are managed when you arrive in A&E. You will be greeted by a healthcare professional who can quickly decide which one of our urgent services is best for you, whether this is one of our Urgent Treatment Centres, Urgent GP Clinics or Same Day Emergency Care services or whether you'll need to be seen in A&E. This will ensure you get the treatment you need, in the quickest and most appropriate way. We also plan to improve the availability of emergency ambulance services across our area, ensuring delays are minimised. We'll make sure that when you don't need to go to hospital, you can be treated at home or where the emergency has occurred.

We'll also ensure you get the latest up to date information about where and when you can access Urgent and Emergency Care services. This will help everyone to use urgent and emergency services more effectively, so that our hospitals can continue to treat you and your family quickly in an emergency and routine operations and procedures aren't cancelled unnecessarily. Soon we will extend our Same Day Emergency Care service, enabling you or your family to be treated on the same day, without the need for admission to hospital.

We want to make sure you don't wait any longer than necessary for an operation. We recognise that waiting for an operation for too long can have a negative impact on your health and wellbeing. When this happens it impacts the rest of our service as more people end up needing extra support while they're waiting, like prescriptions for pain relief, time off work and sometimes even having to go to A&E for emergency treatment.

We're increasing the amount of planned operations we do, year on year, so that we can reduce the long waiting lists and speed up the time it takes for you to get your operation (currently a maximum of 18 weeks from when your GP first sent you for a specialist opinion). As well as this, we're improving the way we keep you up to date with information about how long you'll have to wait, so that when your GP refers you, you'll know straight away how long it's going to be before your operation.

We understand that waiting for treatment is difficult for everyone. None more so that those diagnosed with cancer and to this end we want to ensure that everyone in our region receives the best possible care in the unfortunate event of a cancer diagnosis. This includes ensuring consistency across primary care so that everyone with an urgent two week cancer referral is seen by a cancer specialist within this timeframe.

3 Giving you better information and support to help you stay well and manage illness sooner

In future we need to do more to reach out to people who we know are likely to be at greater risk of becoming ill, or those whose health might deteriorate to the point where they need hospital care.

We want to help you reduce your risk of developing avoidable health conditions by enabling you to make healthy choices where possible e.g. by stopping smoking, being active or staying a healthy weight. However we recognise that your health is influenced by many things such as where you live and work, so support will be tailored to your needs and help you make the best possible choices. Public services don't have all of the answers so we will work with communities to help you and your family stay well and healthy e.g. to reduce social isolation and loneliness.

As well as this, we want to ensure that anyone at risk of developing health conditions, is identified and supported as early as possible. We have a lot of information available to us. By using this data better, we'll be able to spot people who might not realise they have conditions like High Blood Pressure, Diabetes or Stroke, so that together we can support you to manage your health. You can help us by taking up any offer of screening or immunisations.

Modern technology provides us with new ways to provide this kind of proactive care such as helping you to monitor your own health and share information with those supporting you.

As a result, we expect you will have greater confidence in managing your own health and there will be less variation in treatment and outcomes for people with conditions such as cardiovascular disease, respiratory disease and cancer.

We also anticipate that fewer people will need to attend or be admitted to hospital as they will be skilled at looking after themselves when appropriate. This reduces pressure on our system, so that care can be provided for those who need it most.

4 Giving you choice and control over the way your care is planned and delivered

You've told us that you think you'd benefit from care that is built around your individual needs and that you'd like support to build the knowledge, skills and confidence to manage your health conditions and improve the way you live. We want to help support this, so we've developed a range of measures that will give you more choice and control over your health and care needs.

The first of these is a process to give you support from your clinician to take decisions, choose tests and treatment options based on evidence and your personal preferences. We will build on this 'shared decision making', initially focusing on people with Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease but extending this to include people with mental health and learning disabilities and those with long term conditions such as cancer, diabetes and stroke. We will also use this approach for people with frailty and those at the end of their life.

Other support includes questionnaires that help us understand your level of knowledge and confidence about your long term condition. This helps us support you in developing your own capability to manage your health and care, giving you tailored information and support you can act on. This is known as a Patient Activation Measure or PAM for short. Linked to this we are using more and more social prescribing, which is when we refer you to a range of local non-clinical services to help improve your health and wellbeing.

Personal Health Budgets are an amount of money to support your health and wellbeing and are available to adults who are receiving NHS funded long term health and personal care outside hospital. We've now made these available for wheelchair users and will be expanding this to more people across our area. These approaches are collectively called a Comprehensive Model of Personalised Care.

5 Making sure the right people are there to support you

Demand for health and care services is growing, largely as a result of there being more people in our area and that generally we are living longer. To properly meet this growing demand we recognise we need to do things differently in the way that we recruit, train and retain our people. This includes improving the working lives of staff, so that people feel more supported at work and better able to balance the challenges of their working lives with those they may face at home.

In order for our staff to continue to offer compassionate, responsive and understanding care and to develop a more joined-up, personalised approach, we need to value and invest in our staff through the delivery of a workforce plan that enables health and care staff to work as teams around local communities.

We will require not just continued growth in our workforce, but also a shift in our thinking and the way in which we train and compose our teams in health and care settings. We do need 'more', but we also need 'different'.

Different will mean there will be much stronger links between integrated health and care teams within Primary Care Networks. There will be new roles and existing staff will increasingly develop skills that support joined up approaches. We will release staff time to care as technology and scientific innovation transforms care pathways.

Here are some of the key things we've already started to do:

Growing our own people; by engaging better with local schools and colleges to attract young people as they consider careers and at recruitment fairs and local initiatives for those seeking a change of career. We want to make sure there are opportunities across a broad range of levels, so anyone who wants to join us has the chance to do so. We are offering job guarantees following successful completion of local training programmes.

Addressing our workforce shortages; we have challenges across many of our health and social care roles and our initiatives to recruit, train and retain staff are targeted at all health and care staff. We are taking a specific focus on key areas, including addressing nursing shortages, with current vacancy rates averaging at 14%. We will attract more nurses through nurse cadet schemes and creating ambassadors for nursing within local schools. We are also increasing the number of clinical placements available for students. With GP vacancies at 10-12% we are also supporting new GPs with coaching, mentoring and training opportunities and more varied job roles.

Supporting and developing our staff; we are focusing on making our organisations the best place to work through offering flexible ways of working, more opportunities for training and development and staff health and wellbeing services. We are also attracting those who have left health and care jobs to return and recruiting, where we can, from overseas. We are developing rewarding roles that enable staff to develop more integrated care skills and rotate across services. This includes rotational health and social care apprenticeships, paramedic rotations across ambulance and GP services, specialist children's nurses working across hospital and community services and cancer care teams offering mobile lung checks and working alongside GP and community teams. We will also support our staff with the skills to work with evolving technologies, which enable teams to share information and work more effectively to support care needs.

Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes Longer Term Plan

We are developing a range of new roles including:

- Physician Associates, who are trained to support our doctors. As well as carrying out some patient examinations, they are able to interpret test results and diagnose illnesses.
- Nurse apprenticeships and nurse associate roles are two new ways of getting into nursing, working with registered nurses and healthcare support workers to care for a wide range of patients in different settings. Our numbers of nurse associates in training will increase to 91 within 2020 and we are also growing support roles within maternity and within mental health services, such as Peer Support Workers.
- Advanced care practitioners are existing professionals from a range of traditional backgrounds such as pharmacists, nurses, paramedics or occupational therapists, who undertake further education so that they have more skills to support local communities.

All these new roles, together with a greater focus on training and development, will mean our people are even better equipped to support patients, in some instances freeing up other professionals like GPs, to concentrate on those with more complex health needs.

Improving our culture and leadership by creating a more supportive environment for our people. This will include the introduction of a new 'Leading Beyond Boundaries' programme to strengthen and support healthy, inclusive and compassionate leadership at all levels. As part of our shared learning, we have already started to create opportunities for our clinicians to meet and discuss key issues. We will evolve this over time to create clinical networks bringing together local clinicians to shape future working, based on their own experience and industry best practice.

Looking after our people better, using our staff in the right way to make the most of their skills and expertise will ultimately help us give you the best possible treatment in whatever setting you may need our care and support.

Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes Longer Term Plan

6 Getting the most out of technology

Our lives are all now heavily influenced by advances in technology and innovation and in health and care we know that there are constantly new ways in which we can support you, your families and our own people to improve the services we provide. In the next five years there will be new and exciting changes in IT, but in the meantime we want to harness the best of today's technology to improve the way we communicate between our hospitals and GP practices, the information we share and the speed with which we can respond to your needs.

Importantly, we want to ensure you are involved in your personalised health care plan, adding in details of how you prefer to be treated and monitoring your own conditions and alerting your doctor or community nurse if there's a problem. We also want to make sure that the treatment we're providing is consistent, has worked to make you better, and is good value for money.

Some of our other priorities include:

- Hospital based health care staff being able to write in your notes, so your GP or other community health professional can see relevant details about your care and treatment.
- In an emergency, all healthcare staff being able to see an extract from your GP record, so they can make faster and more accurate clinical decisions.
- We're currently testing remote monitoring of high-risk residents in care homes, so we can act quicker when there's a problem.

We're already setting up systems so you can get advice from your GP practice via an online consultation and we've recently introduced a new app for outpatients at Milton Keynes University Hospital. This allows you to view and amend your appointments and access other information. We will be looking to expand this offer across our other hospitals. In Luton a pilot with care homes is testing the adoption of a remote monitoring app for the most vulnerable patients to identify and treat health issues earlier, thereby reducing unnecessary admissions to the Emergency department. Early indications suggest this has reduced attendances at A&E in this area by 17%.

All these innovations will help us to support you and your family, creating a single digital care record for all health and care organisations, so that you don't need to tell your story time and time again and we can provide you with more joined up care.

Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes Longer Term Plan

Improving Care for Major Health Conditions

As well as the big changes we've set out above, we're also taking action to improve care for major health conditions, such as cancer, diabetes, stroke and mental health, and for people at key stages of their life. These include:

- Improving uptake for bowel, breast and cervical screening programmes to reduce the number of people diagnosed with cancer at a late stage. This will improve survival rates and provide faster cancer diagnosis, with most people receiving a definitive diagnosis that will confirm or rule out cancer, within 28 days of referral.
- Establishing three new mental health support teams to work in schools and colleges. They'll support children and young people who may be experiencing mental health issues to get the right support, so that they can stay in education.
- Expanding mental health services to provide earlier intervention and support for mothers from pre-conception to 24 months after birth, and further support for their partners, to prevent problems escalating into a crisis situation.
- Taking a proactive approach to identify people with high blood pressure and provide supported self-management to control this. This will mean a better experience, reduced risk of heart failure and stroke, and fewer unnecessary visits to hospital.

- Introducing multi-disciplinary respiratory hubs to identify and manage complex respiratory disease closer to home, and improve outcomes. This will include improved quality of diagnostic tests, increased uptake of vaccinations (influenza and pneumonia) and increased uptake of Pulmonary Rehabilitation.
- Developing stroke services so there is consistent access to high performing stroke units and rehabilitation, so people have the best chance of long-term recovery with the possibility of living independently.
- Providing universal access to structured education, both face-to-face and digital, to help people with Type 2 Diabetes manage their condition, according to their individual needs and preferences, which means they are likely to have fewer complications, and need fewer visits to their GP or hospital.
- Ensuring health, care and therapeutic services work better together and have the capacity to meet the needs of children and young people with special educational needs.

Bedfordshire, Luton and Milton Keynes Longer Term Plan

How will we pay for this?

Under the NHS Long Term Plan published in January 2019, the NHS will receive increased funding of £20.5 billion per year by the end of five years. Under this deal, funding for our local area is increasing by between 3.2% and 4.4% per year over the period of the Long Term Plan which is greatly welcomed.

This will enable us to invest in the priority areas identified in the NHS Long Term plan (local GP and community services, mental health and cancer) as well as target funding towards local needs.

The increased funding will enable us to deliver services better and smarter by investing in technology, prevention, earlier intervention and treatment.

What happens next?

Some changes will take longer to implement, particularly those that address long-standing health inequalities across our area.

This plan is designed to be live and agile, helping us to drive continual improvement. We recognise we won't get everything right first time – but we will ensure that we test and learn from different approaches elsewhere and challenge our understanding of what we can do here.

We have a responsibility to work together to respond to the challenges we face so that by 2024 people's health and wellbeing in our area is better, our health and care services are better, and we get better value for money.

As we have used your feedback to help guide and develop our plans, we want to continue to involve you as we develop more detailed plans to help us achieve what we have set out in this Longer Term Plan.

You can find out more about our plans for the future by watching this short animation: Together we can grow a healthier future for everyone. If you have any feedback please share with the Healthwatch in the council area you live.
